

MONIQUE BREUER

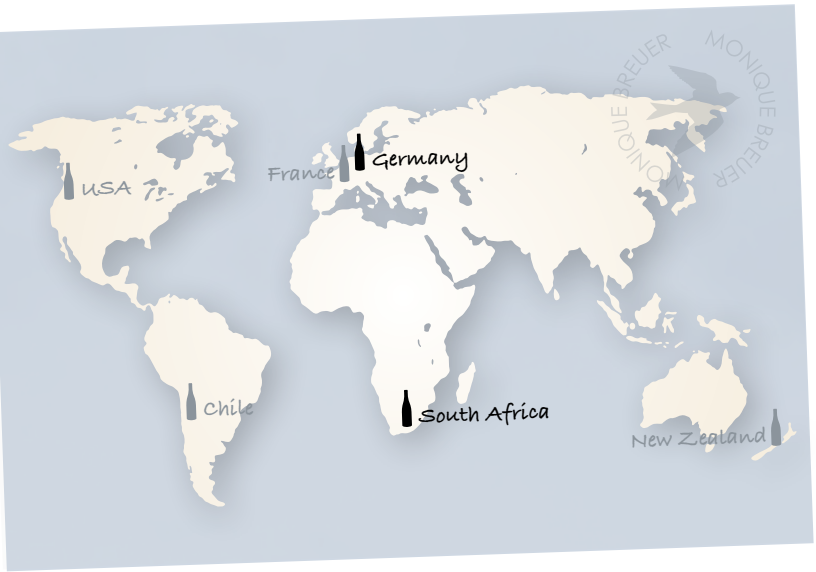

Serendipity

Dream, Dare, Do and make it happen.

Many good stories start with a dream. A dream to create something, to discover or to make a difference. Not everyone walks the road from dream to reality. Because the road is long and full of bumps and nasty intersections. It didn't hold Monique Breuer back in her challenge to pursue her dream and create her own wine. The Serendipity flow for entering into the adventure and to believe in your dream. If you follow your passion, the path rolls out for you. Without convulsively searching, you find your way and you are surrounded by the invisible Serendipity flow. The flow that gives you wings and energy to do what you really would like to do. That's what I also like others to embrace.

Mission Pinot Noir

Dutch winemaker Monique Breuer produced her first Pinot Noir in South-Africa, from the Hemel-en-Aarde-Valley. This elegant style Pinot Noir Serendipity is listed on several wine lists. However, the story does not end here. Monique is focussed on her new goal: making six different Pinot Noirs in six different countries. After South Africa, Monique started in Germany and created a very elegant Spätburgunder and Blanc de Noir from the Pinot area, the Ahr Valley. Two different Pinot's with it's own style expressing the terroir from the valley. Burgundy is the next challenge and Chile, Oregon and New Zealand will follow soon.

Monique follows the Serendipity flow full of enthusiasm and she will realize her dream, the special Serendipity Pinot Noir collection.
